SO VEDDY, VEDDY ENGLISH
A difficult but humorous situation arises in Noel Coward's comedy, "Present Laughter," when Dorothy Tunis, as the secretary, introduces Pat Rogers, (center) who plays the wife, to Jean Maninger, cast as the girl friend. First night of the production to be presented by the Hampton Players, is March 22 at the Breeze Auditorium.

Hampton Players To Stage Coward Comedy

Hampton Players are busy with rehearsals of Noel Coward's light comedy, "Present Laughter," to open March 22 and continue three consecutive weekends at the Breeze auditorium, which will be transformed for horse-shoe staging of this production.

Heading the cast as Garry Essendine is C. J. Reeves, Hollywood Riviera, who has appeared in many Players' shows including "Affairs of State" and "The Moon Is Blue." Ladies in waiting in this episode are his wife, Liz Essendine, played by Pat Rogers, Torrance; secretary, Monica Reed, portrayed by Dorothy Tunis; Joanna Lypplatt, femme fatale, played by Diana Mitchell; and Daphne Stillington, a youthful admirer, done by Jean Maninger. Pat and Dorothy from the Riviera are well known to local audiences. Diana Mitchell, Palos Verdes, will make her first appearance in Little Theatre in this country, having appeared last in her native England. Jean Maninger, also a newcomer to the Players, has recently moved to Redondo from Connecticut and Texas, having done theatre work there and New York, as well as teaching modern dance. She has just completed a series of modern dance performances. Another Redondoan and new talent appearing with the group is Ronald W. Halliwell, as Fred, the typical English valet. Ronald is English in real life, too, coming from Halifax in Yorkshire. Fresh from "The Solid Gold Cadillac," playing locally is Miriam Wilson, who will strip her bikini for apron and high button shoes in the role of Scandinavian cook and housekeeper, Patricia Coates, who just finished directing "Anastasia" for the Palos Verdes players, is cast as Lady Saltburn.
